Rage? No. Blaze!

By Gerrit Dawson, Senior Pastor

Are you mad? Lots of people are. As we reflect on the year that has passed, we recall 2017 as a year of continual outrage. Just a glance at a news site reveals constant use of trigger words for rage. Someone is always “furious,” “offended,” “attacked,” “slamming” or “accused.” We snap, bite and devour with voracious outrage.

But do you ever wonder who benefits from making sure you are in a constant state of agitation? Lots of people want to keep us angry. News sites want you addicted to the chemical rush of being furious at “those” people. Politicians want you hostile enough to vote against their opponents. Nonprofits count on our anger to inspire donations. In short, anger undergirds power. Outrage is a fuel, and we supply it by the tanker load to those who use our anger for their gain.

By contrast, Scripture tells us, “The anger of man does not accomplish the righteousness of God” (James 1: 20). In other words, we’re getting duped into thinking that outrage is productive.

Christ’s kingdom is not built on the screechy offendedness of a provoked people. When we seethe, we’re being deceived. We’re not building, we’re only burning. And we’re being used for others’ purposes.

The task of Christ’s people is very different than perpetual outrage. But that doesn’t mean we’re to be bland, passionless door mats. We’re called to blaze with the light of Christ. It’s a light that exposes darkness and leads people home. It’s a light that illumines injustice even as it reveals a better kingdom. Shining the unquenchable light of Christ will outrage the already outraged. So be it. There are those shivering in the dark who need the heat of the gospel. There are those falling into ruin from the users and the takers. They need the creative fire of Christ to rebuild their lives. Only Christ’s people have that light. We have to uncover it and let it shine.

At the beginning of WW II, the poet W.H. Auden noted,

“Defenseless under the night
The world in stupor lies.
Yet dotted everywhere
. . . points of light
Flash out wherever the Just Exchange their messages.
May I . . . show an affirming flame.”

As we look forward to a New Year, let’s be committed to moving from rage to blaze. From shredding words to the affirming flame of encouragement, truth and love. Jesus the Light of the world told his disciples, “You are the light of the world.” We draw fire from him. He sends us to blaze with the flame that recreates.

I look forward to a year of shining Christ’s light together, and to another 12 months where I can affirm how much I love to be your pastor.

Gerrit

One More Present: Right Now Media

by Darin Travis, Director for Discipleship, Men's Ministry & Young Adults

rightnow MEDIA

The Christmas season has wrapped up for the 2017 year, but I have one more present for you! As the director for discipleship at our church, I am often asked about where good content for small groups or Sunday school material can be found. Others are asking me for solid Bible studies for their personal devotional time at home. When someone is wanting to develop a deeper walk with Christ, wrestling through challenges in a marriage, seeking wisdom for raising children or simply looking for good programming for their kids' entertainment, where can they turn?

Our church would like to equip you with resources for these areas of life and more, which is why we are giving every First Presbyterian Church member a free subscription to Right Now Media (RNM). RNM is an online treasure trove of Biblical content with hundreds of videos from many of our nation's Christian teachers. You will find series on individual books of the Bible as well as relevant topical subjects. Within the site is also a wide variety of downloadable Bible studies for personal and small group use.

One of the best things that my family has personally enjoyed about RNM is the programming for kids. Have you heard of Veggie Tales or watched an episode of What's in the Bible? I have found that kids and adults alike love learning Biblical principles while enjoying the witty comedy of these series. Road trips in our mini-van wouldn't be complete without watching a few episodes of Adventures in Odyssey or Bibleman. The kids' videos on RNM are plentiful and excellent.

My desire in making all of this material available to you is that you would walk deeply with Christ. Look for an email from the church inviting you to create a login and enjoy your membership to Right Now Media!

Renovations, Replacements and Repairs

by Jay High, Director of Media, Technology and Facilities

It was a blessing to return my focus (after the 2016 flood) to our beautiful campus in 2017! It has been a busy, messy, but productive year! It started with completing the replacement of all Education Building windows and the restoration of the lower stained-glass windows—which all turned out beautifully!

Susie Thompson enjoying the new windows in the Library.

Before the window paint had even dried, we moved on to repairing or replacing the roofs throughout our campus. This was no small undertaking. We had eliminated roof repairs from the 2010/2011 renovation, due to downsizing the scope of the work. Many of you have pointed out damaged walls and ceilings throughout the campus, and if these issues were not fixed by the new windows, they were to be fixed with the roof repairs or waterproofing—which was coming next! From fixing the Sanctuary's pitched roof, to replacing the flat roofs over the Sanctuary and Education Buildings, to repairing every other roof, the work is nearly complete and all leaks eliminated!

Before the roofing dumpster was even gone, we were on to waterproofing, including new sealant around windows, replacement of damaged wood, to coating the buildings with special protectants. Our contractors will resume the work right after the new year.

We are already getting quotes to repair and repaint damaged walls and ceilings. Within months, we will be finished restoring the interiors and exteriors of our beautiful campus. Thank you for your generous giving which makes all this possible—and my job more fun!

“Marriage Matters” Seminar

by Jim Solomon, Associate Pastor for Pastoral Care and Prayer

Whether we are single, married, divorced, widowed or know somebody who is, we can each be blessed through learning about and living out God’s Design for Marriage. The marriage in mind may be your current and only marriage, your final marriage or your future marriage. If you are single whether through never having been married, being divorced or being widowed, the marriage in mind for your future will affect your attitudes, actions and behavioral patterns in your present. Why? Because what we learn today and what we do in response to what we’ve learned will either make us or break us when it comes to experiencing God’s best for us in our marriages and in our lives.

On Saturday, January 20, from 9 am to 3 pm, we will learn about, reflect upon and even enjoy a small assignment on what it takes to build (or “rebuild”) a marriage that will go the distance. The seminar will be based on God’s Word and filled with the timeless truths of the Bible, rather than what I often call “Man’s Word,” which is influenced by the customs, conveniences and consumerist mindset of our culture. We will discuss everything from communication, sex and money to oneness, loyalty and commitment.

I hope and pray that you will join me regardless of your current social status as we strive to model our lives after the Master of Life and all he offers us for our own transformation, others’ blessings

Ways of Worship: Chapel Communion

by Gerrit Dawson

Every Sunday, we offer three distinctive styles of worship. The Scripture and message are the same in each service, but the order and music vary. I encourage all our members to become multilingual in worship: to try each service during the course of a year.

The 7.45 service fulfills Psalm 108, “I will awake the dawn. I will give thanks to you, O LORD among the peoples.” There’s a special joy in gathering first thing in the new day to proclaim the praises of our God.

The services unfolds in our beautiful Dunham Chapel. We are surrounded by stained glass windows depicting the story of Jesus. And we share the Lord’s Supper every week. Worshipers note how formative it is to their faith to partake of both Word and Sacrament each week. The intimacy of the Chapel creates a cozy, meditative feel to the morning. With piano, organ, special solos and personal prayers, Chapel Communion richly worships our Triune God.
